Celebrate the SUNFLOWER

With its golden hues and heliotropic leanings, Helianthus are sunshine with roots. And with the National Garden Bureau declaring 2021 the Year of the Sunflower, there's never been a better time to revel in this brazen beauty.

Plant ← The late-summer bloom window feeling all too brief? All hail the arrival of the SunBelievable Brown Eyed Girl Helianthus hybrid that eschews seeds for multibranching flowers that flourish from spring through the first frost—meaning pretty views for you and more nectar for your pollinators. monrovia.com

Decorate → After a blissful summer spent growing and painting the sensational blooms, Lake August (lakeaugust.com) summons them in a wild new wallpaper pattern, Sunniva. Nathalie Farman-Farma's new screen-printed cotton fabric, Les Tournesols, borrows a descriptive Gallic moniker (turner and soleil) for the flowers that rotate sunward. decorsbarbares.com

Visit ↑ Kansas may be the Sunflower State, but Vermont holds high-design bragging rights. Every summer, Woodstock Inn and Resort's Creative Director of Landscape and Design, Benjamin Pauly, creates a 20,000-square-foot sunflower house on the grounds of nearby Billings Farm & Museum, with mazes, rooms, and hallways among 100 sunflower varieties (opens July 31 with blooms peaking in mid-August). woodstockinn.com —TRACEY MINKIN
