Running through 2026, there's a travel experience so exclusive that it includes private access to Michelangelo's home and studio, front-row opera seats in a 2,000-year-old Roman amphitheater, and a personal visit with Italian aristocracy in their 13th-century castle. And that's just the beginning of this premium Italian travel experience.

For travelers who have stayed in every luxury hotel in Italy, eaten at their fair share of Michelin-starred restaurants across Italy, and tried every high-end experience they can imagine, this is true exclusivity that goes beyond traditional luxury tourism in Italy.

The tour group behind this extraordinary Italian vacation, which takes travelers from the iconic rolling hills of Tuscany to the medieval town within the city of Verona, is Perillo Custom Vacations. The company created the limited-time Travel Like an Italian Noble experience to celebrate its 80th anniversary and the decades of accumulated knowledge that contribute to its unique itineraries.

Guests can customize an ultra-exclusive vacation—think days filled with experiences like driving a classic roadster through the Prosecco hills, taking a private helicopter tour over Lake Garda, posing for a professional photo shoot in the Tuscan countryside, and tasting exclusive, World Champion Italian wines.

Choose your own exclusive Italy adventure with a fully customizable itinerary, like private access to Acetaia Leonardi and a tasting of their 150-year-old vinegar.

The $80,000 price tag includes two people and almost all expenses, including five-star accommodations and a range of one-of-a-kind activities that immerse travelers in Italian culture, history, and aristocratic lifestyle, all in the lap of luxury.

Travelers handpick their preferences based on their interests. Diverse luxury offerings include truffle hunting in the Tuscan countryside with a professional truffle hunter and his dog; tasting “Black Gold,” a 150-year-old Balsamic vinegar served at the oldest acetaia in the Modena area, and staying at the historic Due Torri Hotel Verona, where Mozart laid his head in 1770.

Ultra-luxe trips like Travel Like an Italian Noble are becoming increasingly popular as travelers seek out privacy, personalized travel experiences, and insider access. It comes at a time when international travel is on the rise, tourists crowd cities and beaches, and well-heeled travelers are veering away from traditional travel experiences. The more bespoke the vacation, the better, and travel companies like Perillo are leaning into that trend.

Visit private estates with exclusive access, and explore wine caves filled with distinctive library wines only you can taste, on this one-of-a-kind tour of Italy.

Perillo is a third-generation company founded by Italian immigrant Joseph Perillo and headquartered in New Jersey. It has grown into a leading Italian tour company that specializes in deluxe travel throughout Italy, focusing on must-see experiences and off-the-beaten path, exclusive adventures.

Perillo Custom Vacations works with independent travelers to create trips from scratch—every trip is tailored to each traveler’s timeframe, interests, and budget. The company does everything from booking transportation—flights, train travel, chauffer service, and so on—to reserving accommodations of all types from hotels to villas, arranging exclusive day tours, and creating entirely new and unique experiences for savvy travelers.

These bespoke travel packages cater to experiential luxury travel and make Italy’s deep cultural heritage and historic traditions more accessible. So if you’re looking for one of Italy’s most exclusive—and memorable—travel experiences, Travel Like a Noble will give you an opportunity to explore Tuscany and Verona in style.
